MEDICINAL.

It is just a common cold, people say, there's no danger in that. Admitting their statement, then there are uncommon colds, colds which are dangerous; for many a fatal sickness begins with a cold. If we could tell the common cold from the uncommon we could feel quite safe. But we can't. The uncommon variety is rarely recognized until it has fastened its hold on the lungs, and there are symptoms of consumption.

At the first symptoms the careful person will heed the warning by taking a mild laxative; some vegetable pill that will not disturb the system or cause griping. About the best is "Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets." If the cold starts with a cough, and it persists then some local treatment for this condition should be taken. A well known alternative extract, which has been highly recommended by thousands of users, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This tonic compound is composed of an extract of roots and herbs and has a soothing effect upon the mucous membrane, allays the irritation and at the same time works in the proper and reasonable way, at the seat of the trouble—the stagnated or poisoned blood.

It contains no alcohol to shiver up the blood corpuscles, but makes pure rich red blood.

Dr. Pierce's 100-page illustrated book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser," is sent free in paper covers on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only. For 31 stamps the cloth-bound volume will be sent. 1008 pages. It was formerly sold for $1.50 per copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FEROCIOUS HAND-TO-HAND ENCOUNTER.

The general staff at St. Petersburg believes that the storming of Lone Tree Hill for valor and slaughter will occupy a place by itself in military annals. Kuropatkin, under whose eye the assault was made, rechristened it Poutloff Hill, in honor of the man who led the attack at the head of the second brigade of the East Siberian Rifle Division, and who was subsequently decorated on the field with the St. George's Cross. The hill is a precipitous rocky height, and although the Japanese had occupied it only a short time they had thrown up very strong defences.

The river running at its foot increased the difficulty of the task, but it was scaled and carried successfully against the unprecedented opposition of a Japanese division, 14,000 men, with many guns.

The Russian losses were terrible. The fighting on the crest of the hill was altogether with cold steel. The Russian officers, with swords aloft leading the scaling column, were literally lifted in the air by the Japanese bayonets and the Japanese then bayoneted the first of the Russian soldiers who piled in the trenches. All the dead in the trenches were bayoneted, their weapons bearing marks of the dreadful combat.

Nemirovich Danchenko, the well-known Russian war correspondent, telegraphs a description of the fight as follows:

"General Kuropatkin ordered the hill to be retaken and the whole Russian artillery, concentrated at 5 in the morning, showered the hill with projectiles, the awful spectacle lasting the entire day. It seemed that no human being could outlive such an ordeal, yet the defenders remained manfully at their posts. The sun was already declining when Kuropatkin gave the order to storm. Six regiments advanced, fording the river in the face of a murderous fire. The enemy determined to make us pay dearly for it. He poured a hail of gun and rifle fire on our advancing columns, but nothing could stop them. They reached the other side, clambered up and, at 11 o'clock at night, the position was in our hands. I have just visited the scene of our triumph. The trenches are filled with dead Japanese and Russians clutched in a death embrace. I saw no such ghastly sight at Shikpa or at Plevna. The credit for the achievement belongs chiefly to the Thirty-sixth and Nineteenth Lifes. Four other regiments participated. The Thirty-sixth attacked from the east and the Nineteenth from the west. Poutloff, leading the brigade and personally directing the attack, was the first to reach the summit, and was in the thick of the fiercest fighting around the Japanese guns. The Japanese gunners died at their guns. Kuropatkin personally thanked the heroes for their galla at exploit. The captured guns were brought to Mukden."

Ovations to Mr. Bryan.

Hon. William J. Bryan made his first speech yesterday at a large meeting at Green Castle, Ind., which was attended by many students of De Pauw University. His audience was the most enthusiastic he has met on the Indiana trip. He said Indiana needed democracy, and the democracy of the nation needed Indiana. Referring to the defection of gold democrats in 1896, he said:

"I have not time to get down on the ground and look for the tracks of those who left us then. We can get even with those who did not do as we thought they should by doing now what we should. In 1896 the campaign aroused great feeling, and a great many people doubted whether many of the citizens of this country were patriotic. But after election there was a call for volunteers for the war with Spain, and the President did not call only for those who voted for him. The call was to the American people."

Speaking of what he called the republican argument that the "silver and gold" democrats could help Bryan by voting against Judge Parker, Mr. Bryan said: "If you want to see how the republicans want to help me just see how they helped me in the last two campaigns. They bought every vote that could be bought, they coerced every vote that could be coerced, and they misrepresented every argument that could be made in the country."

When the Bryan train reached Terre Haute a great ovation was accorded Mr. Bryan. In the crowd he addressed were many miners. He opposed "government by injunction," and said he wanted to see an established system of arbitration for the settlement of differences between capital and labor, and he wanted to see universal establishment of the eight-hour law.

The streets were lined from the railway station to the Coliseum, where Mr. Bryan spoke to the capacity of the building. Between Terre Haute and Linton there were cheering crowds at all the mining towns along the road. Nearly every coal mine in Green county had shut down that the miners might attend the Linton meeting. The old circus grounds, where the speaking took place were packed with people.

speakers' stand at Linton a section of the stand have way, precipitating 200 people to the ground. The fall was but two feet and no one was seriously injured. Speeches were made at Brazil, Sullivan and other towns.

Police Charge on Irish.

A serious conflict between the police and sympathizers with those who were arrested for participation in the eviction riots at Fellsport, October 12, occurred at the hearing of the case at the Rivertown Courthouse near Cork, Ireland, yesterday. More than 20 persons were injured in the disturbance, some of them being seriously hurt. When the Fellsport defendants were arraigned the crowd in attendance, unable to secure admission in the courtroom, is alleged to have attacked the police. One hundred of the latter lined up and charged with their batons, striking right and left and dispersing the crowd. The judge summoned the officer commanding the police, who said his men had been first attacked. W. M. O'Brien, one of the court attendants, who charged excessive brutality on the part of the police, brought in one of the injured men, who was covered with blood. The magistrate denounced the action of the police, and as a protest adjourned the hearing for six weeks, bailing the accused until that time.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it.
